Speech types simplified

하다 (To do - Standard context)
Formality	Respect Level	Present Declarative
Informal	존댓말	High	하+여요
		High (H)	하+시+여요
	반말	Low	하+여
		Low (H)	하+시+여
Formal	존댓말	High	하+ㅂ니다
		High (H)	하+시+ㅂ니다
	반말	Low	하+ㄴ다
		Low (H)	하+시+ㄴ다

- Informal high (Polite) ends in 요
- Informal low (Casual) - Nothing
- Formal High (Formal) ends in ㅂ니다
- Formal Low
 - Only for books or monologues
- 존댓말 = High & 반말 = Low

(H) stands for honorific - addresses the subject with respect

When you see ㅅ (시, 셔, 세) after the stem, it's honorific

YES & NO

Yes / No
Meaning	Formality	Respect Level		Phrase
YES	Irrelevant	존댓말	High	네 & 예
	Informal	반말	Low	응 & 어
NO	Informal	존댓말	High	아니오
		반말	Low	아니
	Formal	존댓말	High	아닙니다

- 네 & 예 are inherently polite – Formality is irrelevant
- 네 & 예 are interchangeable (네 is more common)
- 응 & 어 are interchangeable

- 아니 – “Not” (Technically)
- 아니 needs suffix for 존댓말 (High) speech types

When No means Yes in Korean

In English, your answer stays the same for both positive and negative questions

A: Aren't you hungry? / Are you hungry?

B: Yes, I am (I AM hungry)

In Korean, you either agree or disagree with the negative

A: Aren't you hungry?

B: 네 – Yes, I'm NOT hungry (I agree with the negative)

B: 아니오 – No, I AM hungry (I disagree with the negative)

$$-1 \times -1 = +1$$

Greetings, Farewell Gratitude, Apology

- They all have grammar within the phrases themselves
- Simply “memorize” these phrases for now
 - Won't go into too much detail with grammar
- Tips to recognize ending type for future references

Hello

안녕하다 - To be well

Formality	Respect Level		Present Inquisitive
Informal	존댓말	High (H)	안녕하세요?
	반말	Low	안녕? ← Only in Textbooks
Formal	존댓말	High (H)	안녕하십니까?

- 안녕하다 - To be well
 - 안녕: Well-being, Peace
 - 하다: To be
 - Only for saying hello and bye

Hello – 존댓말 Informal High

안녕하세^ㅏ요?

Stem Ending

- It's technically a question meaning "Are you well?"
- 'ㅏ' in '세^ㅏ' indicates honorific.
- '요' at the end indicates informal high speech.
- 세요? ending indicates a question (Imperative without the question mark)
- Sometimes there's no question mark but it's the same thing

Hello – 반말 Informal Low

안녕?

No grammar

- 안녕? is used only in textbooks - Sounds a bit “fake”
- In Korea, friends don't even bother greeting each other (unless it's been a long time)

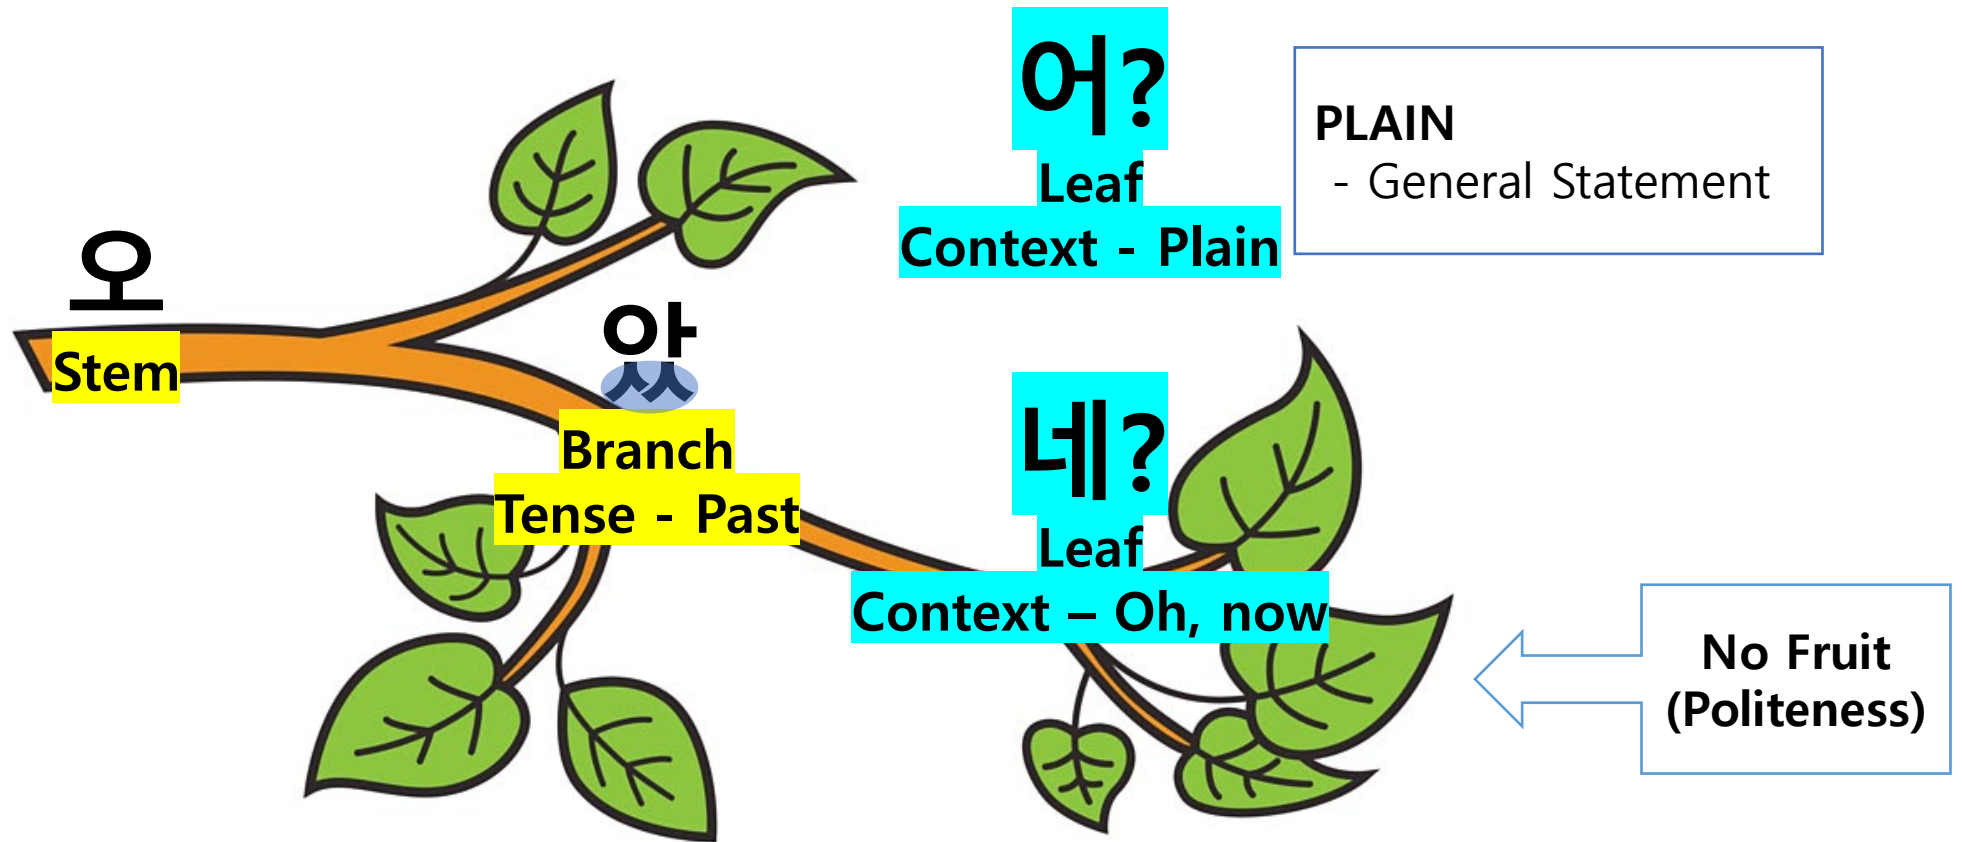

Alternatives – 반말 Informal Low

왔어? / 왔네?

Did you come? / Oh, you're here now

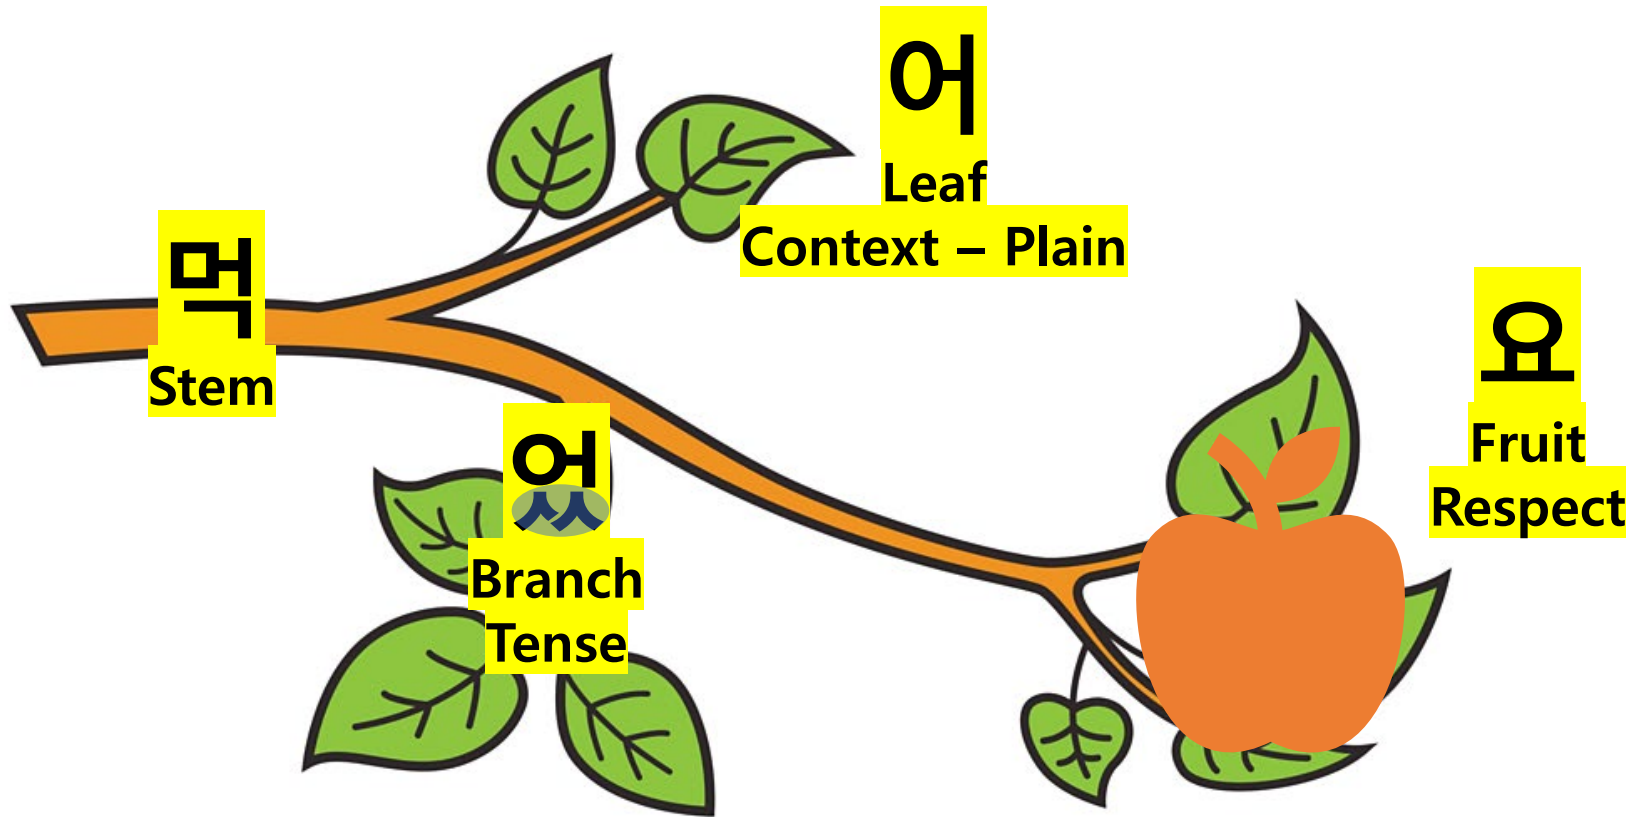

- Comes from the verb 오다 (To come)
 - 오 + 왔 + Context marker = 왔어? 왔네?
- 왔어? sounds similar to "What's up?"
- 'ㅆ' 받침 in the first or second syllable of the verb indicates PAST TENSE. (왔어 먹었어요)

오다 (To come) - Informal Low Past tense

$$\begin{array}{l} \text{오} + \text{아} + \text{어} = \text{왔어?} \\ \text{오} + \text{아} + \text{네} = \text{왔네?} \end{array}$$

먹다 (To eat) Past tense – Informal high

먹 + 어 + 어 + 요 = 먹었어요

Hello – Formal High

안녕하^ㅅ십니까?

- Again, ^ㅅ indicates honorific.
- Questions in Formal Speech have ㅂ니까? Ending.
- Formal High can't have context markers.
 - Little to no emotion
 - Sounds like a robot

How are you? in Korean is awkward

We only say “how are you?” when..

- it's been a long time (at least a few months)
- we want to know “how you really are”
 - Ex: a doctor would ask you “how are you?”

We ask “Did you eat?”

Why?

- Food is huge in Korean culture
- People used to starve for hundreds of years
- Idiom “먹고 살다” literally means “To eat and live”
 - Figuratively means “To make ends meet”

Did you eat? in Korean

Did you eat (rice)?
Formality	Respect Level	Past Inquisitive
Informal	존댓말 High (H)	식사하 셨 어요?
	반말 Low	밥 먹었어?
Formal	존댓말 High (H)	식사하 셨 습니까?

- 밥 means "Cooked rice"
- Also means "Meal" or "Food" in general

Sidenote: 쌀 is "raw rice"

- 식사하다 – to have meal
식사 - meal in Sino Korean supposed to sound fancy and formal (Dine vs Eat)

- 먹다 – To eat

How are you?

When it's been a long time

How are you?
Formality	Respect Level
		Present Inquisitive
Informal	존댓말 High (H)	어떻게 지내세요?
	반말 Low	어떻게 지내?
Formal	존댓말 High (H)	어떻게 지내십니까?

- 지내다 (v) doesn't exist in English
- Describes general state of being or passing the time

- 잘 지내세요?
- 잘 지내?
- 잘 지내십니까?

- 어떻게 – How
- You can substitute 어떻게 with 잘 (well)

Nice to meet you

반갑다 – Glad

반갑다 - To be glad

Formality

반갑습니다

- 반갑다 is an irregular verb
- Many verbs with 받침 in the stem follow similar pattern
- The subject "I" is omitted
- 만나서 반가워요
- 만나서 반가워
- 만나서 반갑습니다

- You could add 만나서 in front
 - 만나다 – To meet
 - 만나서 반가워요 – (We) meet, so (I) am glad

Bye in Korean

- Depends on who is leaving
 - “Stay well” or “Go well”
- Except for “안녕” (반말 Informal low)
 - “안녕” is both for greeting and farewell
 - But we don't say 안녕 IRL

Bye

When they're staying (you're leaving)

Bye - When they're staying

Formality	Respect Level		Imperative
Informal	존댓말	High (H)	안녕히 계세요
	반말	Low	잘 있어
Formal	존댓말	High (H)	안녕히 계십시오

- They all mean "Stay (be) well"
- Formal high imperative has ~십시오 ending.
- 세요 ending without the question mark is an imperative

- 있다 - To be (To exist)
- 있다 is a present tense
- Past tense is 있었다
- 계시다 is honorific of 있다
- 안녕히 is an adverbial form of 안녕하다
- Adverbs typically end with 히 or 게 like ly in English

Bye

When they're leaving (you're staying)

Bye - When they're leaving

Formality	Respect Level		Imperative
Informal	존댓말	High (H)	안녕히 가세요
	반말	Low	잘 가
Formal	존댓말	High (H)	안녕히 가십시오

- 가다 – To go

- They all mean “Go well”
- Formal high imperative has ~십시오 ending.
- 세요 ending without the question mark is an imperative

Thank you in Korean

There are two words to express gratitude

감사하다 > 고맙다

- 감사하다 is more “sincere” than 고맙다
- Both are descriptive verbs meaning
 - To be grateful or To be thankful
- Formal high(ㄴ니다) is more commonly used than Informal high (~요)

Thank you

from most common to least common

고마워

존댓말 High

고마워요
감사해요

- 감사하다 is more commonly used in 존댓말.
- We only use 고맙다 in 반말
- Best to stick with 감사합니다 and 고마워
- 고맙다 is another irregular verb with 받침 like 반갑다
- They all mean I'm grateful / I'm thankful

Sorry in Korean

There are two words to apologize

죄송하다 > 미안하다

- 죄송하다 is more “sincere” than 미안하다
- Both are descriptive verbs meaning
 - To be sorry
- Formal high is more commonly used than Informal high

Sorry

from most common to least common

죄송하다 미안하다 - To be sorry
Formality	Respect Level		Present Declarative
Formal	존댓말	High	죄송합니다 미안합니다
	반말	Low	미안해 미안
Informal	존댓말	High	미안해요 죄송해요

- 죄송하다 is more commonly used in 존댓말.
- We only use 미안하다 in 반말
- Best to stick with 죄송합니다 and 미안해
- 미안 is more casual than 미안해 like "My bad"

Never say sorry to say “I’m sorry to hear that”

- These phrases are for apologies only - not to show compassion
- In Korean, you can’t say sorry for sth you’re not responsible for
- No equivalent expression in Korean
 - There are other ways to show empathy

Informal	존댓말	High	미안해요 죄송해요
	반말	Low	미안해

- 죄송하다 > 미안하다
- NOT for I'm sorry to hear that

Conversational Tips

- 네 & 예 (Yes) is inherently polite
- 네,예 & 어,응 (Yes) needs no suffix
- 아니 (Not) needs suffix for high speech types
- Negative question works like $-1 \times -1 = +1$
- 안녕하다 is only for greeting and farewell
- Koreans don't really use 안녕 (Informal low) all that much.
- Add '요' at the end to sound polite.
- Koreans don't say "How are you?", we say "Did you eat?"
- Koreans don't say "sorry to hear that"

Grammar Tips

- Speech Type Terminology: Informal/Formal & High/Low
- Informal high is the most common speech type and it ends in 요
- Formal high speech ends with ㅂ니까? or ㅂ니다 or 십시오 (Imperative)
- Formal high speech types can't have context markers
- If it doesn't have either 요 or 니다, it's Informal low (반말)
- When there is a ㅅ (시, 셔, 세) after the stem, it's an honorific.
- 세요? indicates a question, 세요 (w/o?) indicates an imperative
- When there is a ㅆ 받침 either in the stem or in the syllable after the stem, it's past tense (Except 있다)
- Most adverbs in Korean end with 히 or 게 like ~ly in English.

A is B

이다 – To be

- I am a man – 이다 (A is B)
- I am here – 있다 (I exist)
- I am kind – Descriptive verb (친절하다)

“Am” in each sentence represents different idea.

Korean has diff words for each of these ideas

Subject

I am a student

S

나는 학생이야 Inf. L

저는 학생이에요 Inf. H

저는 학생입니다 For.H

- 학생 – Student
- 이다 – To be

There are two versions of “I”

- 나 – I
- 저 – Honorific “I”
- When in doubt, use “저”

Subject Particle

My name is Amira

내 이름은 아미라야 Inf. L

제 이름은 아미라예요 Inf. H

제 이름은 아미라입니다 For. H

- 내 – My (나의) 의: of 's
- 제 – My (H) (저의)
- 이름 – Name
- 이다 – To be

은 / 는 particle marks the subject

- Does not exist in English

- 은 is for nouns with 받침
- ex: 제 이름은

- 는 is for nouns without 받침
- ex: 저는

받침 is important for grammar
(also for verbs)

이다 Conjugation

This and That

이, 저, 그 + 것 (거)

것 - Thing

- In English, this and that could both be noun or adjective
- In Korean, it's always adjective. So, we add 것 (thing) after 이,저, 그
- 이것 (거) – This 이거
- 저것 (거) – That in sight (far) – 저거
- 그것 (거) – That in sight (close) – 그거
– That not in sight

이 저 그 + 거 (것)

NOUN	THIS	THAT
	이거	저거	그거 #1	그거 #2
Consonant	ㅇ	ㅈ	ㄱ	ㄱ
Visible	-	YES	YES	NO
Distance	-	FAR	CLOSE	-

THAT in Korean

- 저거 – That over there
- 그거#1 – That right there
- 그거#2 – That guy I met the other day

You can use either 거 or 것 but 거 is more natural

Pay attention to the consonant of each word

Here and there
	HERE	THERE
	여기	저기	거기#1	거기 #2
Consonant	ㅇ	ㅈ	ㄱ	ㄱ
Visible	-	YES	YES	NO
Distance	-	FAR	CLOSE	-

Pay attention to the consonants used.

여기 : Here

저기 : I can see that tree over there

거기#1 : It's right there

거기#2 : I've been there

This / That is Noun

This is a chair

이것은 의자예요

이거는 의자예요

이건 의자예요

That is a desk

저것은 책상이에요

저거는 책상이에요

저건 책상이에요

That is a notebook

그것은 공책이에요

그거는 공책이에요

그건 공책이에요

의자 – Chair

책상 – Desk

공책 – Notebook

Abbreviation

것은 → 거는 → 건

• 거 + 는 = 건

Eng. Comparison:

Cannot → Can't

You in Korean

- You in Korean can be quite tricky
- Casual You is “너” only for friends or younger people – Simple
 - ex: 너는 학생이야 – You are a student
- Honorific you is “당신” according to textbooks
 - You should never use “당신” unless you’re talking to your spouse
 - Otherwise, it’s rude.

Honorific You in Korean

When you know the person

Unless we're talking to a friend, we never use the word "you" directly.

오빠 & 형 – Older brother

언니 & 누나 – Older sister

씨 is a bit less formal than 님

선생 – Teacher
매니저 – Manager
교수 – Professor

Honorific You in Korean
When you know the person
Formality	Gender	Status	Word
Informal	Female → Male	Older	오빠
	Female → Female		언니
	Male → Male		형
	Male → Female		누나
Not too formal	Irrelavant		Name + 씨 아미라 씨
Formal	Irrelavant		Name + 님 아미라 님
Formal	Irrelavant	Higher	Title + 님 선생님 매니저님 교수님

"You are OO" Example

- 오빠는 학생이예요
- 언니는 한국 사람이예요
- 형은 선생님이예요
- 누나는 간호사예요
- 아미라 씨는 호주 사람이예요
- 교수님은 여자입니다
- You are a student – Older brother
- You are Korean – Older sister
- You are a teacher – Older brother
- You are a nurse – Older sister
- You are Australian – Amira
(호주: Australia 사람: Person)
- You are a woman – Professor

You for strangers

You have 2 options.

1. Simply drop the subject entirely and use honorific verbs
2. There are certain titles you can use depending on who you're talking to - Requires a deeper understanding of the culture.

Honorific You in Korean

When you don't know the person

Formality	Gender	Age	Word
Informal	Female	Older (But not grandmother)	아주머니
	Male	Older (But not grandfather)	아저씨
	Irrelevant	Older (60~90)	선생님
		Older (60~90)	어르신
		Young about the same age	그쪽

선생님 is figurative
- like life teacher

그쪽 – That side

Assignment

- Lesson Notes
- Memorize the phrases – all 3 speech types – Read them out loud
- Vocab list up
 - Keep your own list
- Watch videos
- Make 10 sentences with 이다
 - Use all 3 speech types
 - Write self-introduction
 - Use the list or Naver dictionary for vocab
 - 은/는 Subject particle
 - 이다 – A is B verb

Focus only on 3 speech types [Informal low, high and Formal high]

Don't worry about honorifics
