옷은 오늘 베란다에서 빨리 말랐어요

The clothes dried quickly on the balcony today.

It's more natural to use the subject marker and say 옷이

옷이 오늘 베란다에서 빨리 말랐어요

은/는 mainly has 2 purposes

- General facts (Compatible with A)
- To contrast or highlight a difference

이/가 (Compatible with THE)

- simply marks the subject of the verb

PARTICLE 도 & 만

도 – TOO, ALSO, EVEN

만 – ONLY, JUST

- 도 & 만 can be placed after ANY noun in a sentence

나 도 네가 좋아 - I like you, too

너는 왜 일 만 해? - Why do you do only work?

- 도 & 만 can also be placed after certain particles [에, 에서, 부터, 까지, 에게, 한테]

- 에도(만), 에서도(만), 부터도(만), 까지(만), 에게도(만), 한테도(만)

▶ [Also or Only] in that location or in that time or to that person

그 직원은 점심시간 에만 화장실에 가요 - Time

- That employee goes to the washroom only at lunchtime

저는 학교 에서도 or 학교 에서만 공부해요 - Location

- I study [also or only] at school

도&만 can be attached to verbs as well.

We will revisit 도&만 later

도 – Too, Also, Even

“I also study math” has 3 meanings in English

- I also study math → Someone else studies math, and I do, too.
- I also study math → I study other subjects, and math as well.
- I also study math → I do other things, and studying math is one of them.

In Korean, 도 (and 만) must be placed after the specific word you want to emphasize

저도 수학을 공부해요 - I, too study math
저는 수학도 공부해요 - I study math, too
저는 수학 공부도 해요 - I also study math

도 – Too, Also, Even

도 can be placed after ANY NOUN

- 저도 강아지를 좋아해요 – Subject
 - [I, too / Even I] like dogs
- 저는 강아지도 좋아해요 – Object
 - I like [dogs as well / even dogs]

도 can be placed after other particles

- 월요일에도 미팅이 있어요 – Time
 - I have a meeting on Monday, too [even on Monday]
- 저는 집에서도 운동을 했어요 – Location
 - I worked out at home, too [even at home]
- 친구한테도 선물을 줬어요 – Person
 - I gave a gift to my friend, too [even to my friend]

도 cannot be placed after

- Topic marker 은는 (저는도 X)
- Subject marker 이가 (제가도 X)
- Object marker 을를 (집을도 X)

Instead, 도 replaces them

- 저도
- 집도

만 – Only, Just

만 can be placed after ANY NOUN

- 토요일에 저만 사무실에 있었어요 – Subject
- Only I was in the office on Saturday
- 나는 고기만 먹어 – Object
- I only eat meat

만 can be placed after other particles

- 저는 일요일에만 교회에 가요 – Time
- I go to church only on Sundays
- 제니퍼 씨는 체육관에서만 운동을 해요 - Location
- Jennifer works out only at the gym

을 & 이 can be attached to 만 but it's not necessary

만을 / 만이

- 우리는 사실만(을) 말했어 – Object
- We spoke only the facts
- 제 친구만(이) 시험에 합격했어요 – Subject
- Only my friend passed (to) the test

만 vs 만은

- 나는 이 순간만 기억해 – Object
- I remember this moment only
- 나는 이 순간만은 기억해
- I remember this moment at least

▶ I could forget other moments but at least not this moment

밖에 + Negative verbs

Anything but

밖에 literally means “outside of”

- 밖에 is ONLY used with [Negative verbs]

Could be translated to “Anything but”

- 저는 학교에서 밖에 공부를 안 해요 – I don't study anywhere but school = I only study at school
- 오늘 한 시간 밖에 없어요 – I don't have anything but one hour today = I only have one hour

밖에 could also be used figuratively

- 제 친구는 남자친구 밖에 몰라요 – My friend doesn't know anyone but her boyfriend
= She only knows her boyfriend → All she knows is her boyfriend
(As in, she's deeply in love with her boyfriend)

밖에 could also be placed after other particles

- 에어컨이 사무실에 밖에 없어요 – Air conditioner is not anywhere but in the office
= I have an air conditioner only at the office, but not at home

밖에 vs 만

- 밖에 cannot be used with '아니다'

여기(에)서 나만 남자야 (O) – I'm the only man here

여기(에)서 나 밖에 남자가 아니야 (X)

- 밖에 cannot be used in propositive and imperative sentences

이것밖에 하지 마 (X) → 이것만 해 (O) – Only do this

오늘은 공부 밖에 안 하자 (X) → 오늘은 공부만 하자 O – Let's just study today

- When 밖에 is more natural

I only eat vegetables

A) 저는 채소만 먹어요

B) 저는 채소밖에 안 먹어요

- Both A and B have the same translation, but B sounds more natural.
- When using 밖에 to mean 'only,' it emphasizes that something is lacking or missing. The Particle 만 has no extra emphasis.
- Therefore, B sounds like the speaker is saying that eating only vegetables isn't enough for them – perhaps they wish they ate other things too.

- 만 can be used in both positive & negative sentences, 밖에 is used in negative sentences only.

- 집에 동생만 있어요 (O) – No one else but my brother is home.

- 집에 동생 밖에 없어요 (O)

- 집에 동생만 없어요 (O) – Everyone else is home except my brother.

- 집에 동생 밖에 있어요 (X)

To and from [People]

에게, 한테, 께

에게, 한테, 께 are used only for people (and animals)

In English, you can say

- I gave Amira a candy / I gave a candy to Amira

But in Korean, you should always use a particle.

- 아미라에게 사탕을 줬어요
- 아미라한테 사탕을 줬어요

한테 is much more common in spoken Korean.

에게 is almost always only used in written Korean.

께 is honorific version of 에게 but it's entirely optional as long as you use humble speech

Both sentences are fine

- 선생님께 사탕을 드렸어요
- 선생님에게/한테 사탕을 드렸어요

[주다 → 드리다]

To and from [People]

에게서, 한테서, 께

To say "From" a person, you can use 에게서 한테서 and 께. 서 is optional.

I received a candy from Amira

- 아미라에게(서) 사탕을 받았어요
- 아미라한테(서) 사탕을 받았어요

I received a gift from my parents [부모님: Parents]

- 부모님께 선물을 받았어요

Note that 께서 does not mean from.

께서 is honorific subject marker (께서 = 이/가)

The teacher gave me a candy

- 선생님께서 저에게 사탕을 주셨어요
- 선생님이 저에게 사탕을 주셨어요

I received a candy from the teacher

- 선생님께 사탕을 받았어요

만을	Object	Only ____ (object focus)	Formal or strong emphasis on the object
만은	Any noun	At least ____ (topic contrast)	To emphasize one key point or exception
만이	Subject	Only ____ (subject focus)	To highlight a unique subject

Other Particles + 는 = Contrast

- 에는 : As for + At this time (는 shows Contrast)
 - 12시에는 수업이 있어요 – At 12 o'clock, I have a class - But I might be free some other time
- 에서는: As for + At this place
 - 이 카페에서는 커피를 안 마셔요 – I don't drink coffee at this café
 - Not here or Not coffee
- 부터는: As for + From this time or place

- 한테는 or 에게는: As for + to someone
 - 왜 나한테는 과자밖에 안 줬어? – Why did you give me only snacks?
 - Everyone else got something much better

V.S 고 있다 – Progressive Tense ~ING

Action Verb Stem + 고 있다

- Why Action verbs only? because you can't be beautiful-ing, good-ing
[❌ 예쁘고 있다] [❌ 좋고 있다]
- In order to say "I am becoming pretty", you have to learn how to change a descriptive verb to an action verb, which we will learn later.

All you have to do is conjugate 있다

Example:

- Present

한국에 살고 있어요 - I am living in Korea [살다 + 고 있어요]

- Past

운전하고 있었어요 - I was driving [운전하다 + 고 있었어요]

- Future [Promise form]

나만 알고 있을게 - Only I will be knowing [알다 + 고 있을게]
[I won't tell anyone else]

Important

- 고 없다 is wrong.
- To say, "not doing", you have to negate 있다 with 안 or 지 않
다

Example: I'm not listening to music

음악을 듣고 없어요 (X)

음악을 안 듣고 있어요 (O)

음악을 듣고 있지 않아요 (O)

V.S 는 중이다 – Progressive Tense ~ING

중(中) is a Sino-Korean word, which means middle or center.

~는 중이다 can translate to “to be in the middle of” This form also works with Action verbs only.

All you have to do is conjugate 이다

Example:

- Present & Past

지금 가는 중이에요 - I am going now [I'm on my way]

저녁 먹는 중이었어요 - I was just eating dinner

샤워하는 중일거야 – I guess she's taking a shower

- This form doesn't have a “future” tense [Stick with ~고 있을 거예요]

샤워하는 중일거야 : Conjecture only

- You can remove “하는” with 하다 verbs

운전하는 중이에요 → 운전 중이에요 - I am driving

- 영업하다 means to do business

You can see this sign everywhere in Korea

🔍 What's the difference?

Expression	Structure	Emphasis	Example
~고 있다		~는 중이다
Covers a broader time range , not just the current moment (= These days, Recently)	요즘 운동하고 있어 I'm working out these days (even if not right this second)	Means "in the middle of doing something" Focuses on what is happening at the moment	친구랑 얘기 중 이야 I'm in the middle of talking with a friend (right now)
Often used to describe your general routine or recent ongoing activity		Can drop "하는" when used with 하다 verbs e.g., 운전 중, 얘기 중, 샤워 중
Present	✓	Was doing Just now →	Present ✓
Past	✓		Past ✓
Future	✓		Future ✗

중 일거야 means "I guess" ex: 샤워 중 일거야
Maybe she is in the middle of taking a shower

I want to~ ~고 싶다

Action Verb Stem + 고 싶다

- This form can only be used with 1st person (I, we) and 2nd person (You)

- 1st person : Statement (I want to / We want to)
- 2nd person : Question (Do you want to?)

because Korean doesn't allow you to assume his, her, or their wants.

For 3rd person subject, you have to use a different form, [~고 싶어 하다], or quoting form which we will learn later.

Example

- 피자^가 먹고 싶어요 – I want to eat pizza.
- 호주에 여행가고 싶어요 - I want to travel to Australia.
- 왜 한국어를 배우고 싶어요? – Why do you want to learn Korean?
- 뭐 하고 싶어? – What do you want to do?

Why 피자가 먹고 싶어요?

Both “피자가 먹고 싶어요” and “피자를 먹고 싶어요” are grammatically correct

But, there's a subtle difference in nuance.

It's an exception to the rule.

✓ 1. 피자^가 먹고 싶어요

In this sentence, 피자 is marked with -가, making it the subject of the descriptive verb 싶다.

싶다 is a descriptive verb and works like “to be desirable”

So, 피자 acts as the subject of 싶다.

Think of it like:

Pizza is desired to be eaten (by me).

This form is more natural and common.

✓ 2. 피자^를 먹고 싶어요

Here, 피자 is marked with -를, making it the object of 먹다.

The sentence treats 싶다 more like an auxiliary attached to 먹다 (“want to eat”)— so the desire applies to the action, not directly the pizza.

Don't want to~ ~기 싫다

You can negate the -고 싶다 form using the usual verb negation patterns 안 ~ or ~지 않다

- 안 하고 싶다
- 하고 싶지 않다

Both are perfectly acceptable and commonly used. But here's what native speakers often prefer:

Action Verb Stem + -기 싫다

This directly expresses the idea of disliking or not wanting to do something.

Examples:

- 가기 싫어요 = I don't want to go
- 먹기 싫어요 = I don't want to eat
- 일하기 싫어요 = I don't want to work

This form is more natural and emotionally expressive, especially in spoken Korean.

Example

- 오늘 헬스장 갈 거예요?
- Are you going to the gym today?
- 아니요, 오늘은 운동하기 싫어요
- No, I don't feel like working out today.

운동하고 싶지 않아요 / 운동 안 하고 싫어요 are fine but 기 싫어요 feels more natural.

What is ㄱ|?

- The suffix ㄱ| turns the verb into a noun (called nominalization)
- There are a few more ways of nominalization, which we will learn later on.

공부하다 → 공부하기 + 싫어요 = Act of studying is undesirable

Try saying

- I don't want to wake up early
일찍 일어나다 : To wake up early 일찍 일어나기 싫어요
- I don't want to clean my room
방: Room 청소하다 : To clean
저는 방을 청소하기 싫어요

🔍 What's the difference?

Expression	Structure	Emphasis	Example	Nuance
안 하고 싶다 / 하고 싶지 않다	Negated desire	the absence of want	안 가고 싶어요	Slightly awkward / less natural
가기 싫다	Dislike of action itself	unwillingness or dislike	가기 싫어요	Sounds more natural & commonly used

🧠 Native Preference

Even though both forms are grammatically fine, native Korean speakers almost always default to the -기 싫다 form when expressing that they don't want to do something.

✅ Summary

- Use 안 하고 싶다 / 하고 싶지 않다 if you want to stay structurally close to the 고 싶다 form.
- Use 기 싫다 for a more natural, emotionally expressive way to say "I don't want to do [something]."
→ In most cases, go with 기 싫다.

Example sentences

- 카페에서만 공부하고 싶어요.
→ I want to study only at a café.
- 저도 한국어를 배우고 싶어요.
→ I also want to learn Korean.
- 물밖에 마시고 싶지 않아요.
→ I don't want to drink anything but water.
[I only want to drink water]
- 집에서 쉬고 싶어요.
→ I want to "rest" at home (not work)

Example sentences

- 월요일에는 정말 일하기 싫어요.
→ I really don't want to work on Monday.
- 채소만 먹기 싫어요
→ I don't want to eat only vegetables.
- 주말에는 일만 하기 싫어요
→ On the weekends, I don't want to only work
(I want to do other things, too because it's the weekends)

I want something

Common mistake

- 원하다 = "to want" (very direct and strong tone)
- Sounds unnatural in everyday speech when wanting a thing
- Often used in song lyrics or formal writing

Example:

❌ 김치를 원해요 → sounds like "I desire kimchi" (too strong)

✅ 김치가 먹고 싶어요

You can use 원하다 as a modifier [Yet to learn]

내가 원하는 것 = The thing that I want

More natural to say “I want to have something”

Previously, we learned “나는 돈이 있어요” [I have money = As for me, money exists]

And how “나는 돈을 가져요” sounds awkward.

This is where the 가지다 (to have, to possess, to own) comes in.

- 가지다 is shortened to 갖다

Example:

저는 새 휴대폰을 가지고 / 갖고 싶어요 = I want to have a new phone

This is why we learned “~고 싶다” form first.

Don't use 가지다 for everything

In English, we use "to have" for everything

- To have dinner
- To have a dog

Using 가지다 for food or pets sound awkward

- ✗ 햄버거를 가지고 싶어요 → sounds like "I want to possess a hamburger"
- ✗ 강아지를 가지고 싶어요 → sounds like "I want to possess a dog"

Instead say,

- 햄버거를 먹고 싶어요 → ✓ I want to eat kimchi
- 강아지를 키우고 싶어요 → ✓ I want to raise a dog

Don't do it

Verb stem + 지 말다

- Conjugate 말다:

말다 is an irregular verb ending in ㅁ, so it conjugates like this:

- 하지 마 – I.L
- 하지 마요 – I.H
- 하지 마세요 – I.H (H) < Most common
- 하지 마십시오 – F.H (H)

Note: 말다 is a helping verb. (To stop, To cease, To not do)

- It isn't used by itself and only appears in certain grammar patterns.
- It can also mean "not this but that", like:
- 이거 말고 저거 → "Not this one, that one"
- (This usage will be covered in a later lesson.)

~지 마세요

- 학교에 늦지 마세요.
→ Don't be late to school.
- 도서관에서(는) 떠들지 마요. (는 → At least not in the library)
→ Don't make noise in the library.
- 여자친구한테 거짓말하지 마.
→ Don't lie to your girlfriend.
- 친구한테 소리 지르지 마세요.
→ Don't yell at your friend.
- 식사 시간에(는) 전화하지 마세요. (는 → At least not during mealtime)
→ Don't call me during mealtime.

떠들다 : To talk loudly

거짓말: Lie

소리 지르다 : To yell
